Description

Provide a short description of the event and its activities.

During the fourth event of the REcup Project, titled "European Citizens Lab: COVID-19 Effects and Labour Market Challenges," held from March 24-26, 2024, in Novo mesto, Slovenia, participants from various partner countries gathered to discuss the impacts of COVID-19 on unemployment and the labour market across Europe. The event included the participation of local unemployed individuals and key stakeholders, with each partner organization also bringing unemployed participants, relevant stakeholders, and partner representatives to ensure diverse perspectives and meaningful exchanges.

On the first day, participants arrived throughout the morning and early afternoon. The event officially began with a brief welcome, followed by a presentation by the Development and Education Center Novo Mesto (DRPDNM), showcasing their best practices in addressing unemployment and labour market challenges exacerbated by the pandemic.

Later in the day, a REcup Project meeting was held to review and report on the outcomes of the first three work packages (WP1, WP2, and WP3). This meeting provided an opportunity for participants to discuss progress, share insights, and address any challenges encountered thus far. The day concluded with a networking dinner, allowing participants to connect more informally.

On the second day, the event commenced with welcoming speeches from DRPDNM and the Municipality of Novo mesto, including addresses by the mayor, Mr. Gregor Macedoni, and the president of DRPDNM, Ms. Branka Bukovec. Following these speeches, each partner country presented their findings and experiences related to the "Unemployed European Citizens Lab," focusing on how COVID-19 has impacted their labour markets.

After a short coffee break, the first phase of discussions began with a round table and workshop led by A.S.E.L. Romania. This session focused on mapping employment issues and analyzing the economic impact of COVID-19 on the European Union. Participants engaged in an in-depth discussion, sharing their observations and concerns. The afternoon was dedicated to brainstorming ideas on how the pandemic's impact has varied across different sectors and identifying recovery measures necessary to support the EU citizens' community and uphold democratic values. This session was guided by DRPDNM's experts, who facilitated a workshop aimed at generating practical solutions.

The day concluded with a final round table discussion, where participants presented draft action plans based on the day's discussions. Feedback was provided to refine these plans before finalization. The draft action plans presented during the final round table discussion focused on strategies to mitigate unemployment post-COVID-19, including policy recommendations for enhancing job market resilience, integrating digital and green skills into employment training programs, and fostering stronger collaboration between public and private sectors to create sustainable job opportunities. The evening ended with another networking dinner, fostering continued dialogue and collaboration.

On the third and final day, participants embarked on a tour of Novo mesto, visiting sites that showcased successful EU-funded projects in the region. This tour provided a practical perspective on how EU support has facilitated local development. The event concluded with a project management meeting, where participants evaluated the event's outcomes, discussed the effectiveness of the sessions, and planned future activities for the REcup project. A closing lunch provided a final opportunity for participants to connect and reflect on the event's achievements before their departure.

The event underscored the lasting impact of COVID-19 on unemployment and the need for adaptive policies, skills development, and stronger stakeholder collaboration. Participants emphasized inclusive recovery strategies to enhance job resilience and ensure access to opportunities for those most affected.
